

Our Class at St. Patrick's Seminary in the Sixties

(Many left in 1969 after getting a BA in Philosophy, but others stayed on, some being ordained in 1973.)

Left to Right: Upper class man (?) with John Prinderville, Charlie Lathrop, Nick Cain, Ken Boegel, and Alan Cecilio (?) at small SPS court yard.

The best educational move I experienced at St. Pat's was it not teaching its classes in Latin and opening its philosophy classes to a wide range of philosophers beyond that of St. Thomas Aquinas. That was liberating.

On the Philosophy steps: Top to bottom Left: Pat Foley, Stan Teixeira, Tucker Sheehan talking to Larry Percell and Leo Rooney, Seamus Genovese; Randy Gorringer, Tom Hansen, Paul Page (w. pipe?), George Ferrua, Jack Hyland, the barefoot guy(?), Rudy Leonardi, Charlie Franich, and Dennis Fuata. Is that Barile going up the steps? Steve Essig says he's behind Tucker. (Who took this great photo?)

BACK: Len Philippini, Alan Cecilio, Ken Boegel, Chuck Lathrop, Leo Rooney, Dennis Fuata, Joe Ternello, Adrian Kwoc, Guillermo Gorospe (?), Jim Neary MIDDLE: Pete Talcot, Jack Hyland, Paul Stankovitz, Tucker Sheehan, Wally McMahon, Bob Hammon (?), Andy Barton, Howard Baker, Dave Donovan, Phil Broderson, Lyle Peterson, Bill Rhodes, Alex Hussy, Lee Holmes, Charlie Franich, Juan FRONT: George Ferrua, Rich Garcia, Paul Tevlin, Paul Page, Peter Anderson, Steve Essig, Joe Barile, Pat Foley, L Betrozoff, Seamus Genovese, Stan Teixeira Meno

Fall 1967 at St. Patrick's Seminary. Menlo Park

